LESSON OF CHRISTMAS DAY

Example of Christ Should Inspire Unselfishness and Make Us Try to Remedy Faults.

Christmas should inspire a world of unselfishness. The example before us is almost too perfect, for it rather frightens us to attempt such divine heights of self-abnegation, but we can try. It will at least take us from the depths of selfishness, where most of us now are. Each Christmas day should teach us something of the lesson of the Holy Child's life.

If we could learn from Christmas, today and in the succeeding years the serious lessons of self-betterment and enlightenment it has to offer, how infinitely better it would be than just to look on it as a holiday for gifts and feasts, for extravagance and foolishness.

So take an hour or two off on Christmas day and give it up to retrospective and self-inspection. You will each find faults, if you judge yourself impartially, for no one is perfect. Then make a serious determination to try to overcome those faults, for only trying to improve is there any growth in character. If you are satisfied with yourself you stay just as you are with all your faults and virtues. But if you try hard to remedy the faults your character is constantly growing broader. This is the lesson which Christmas day has for each of you.

CHRISTMAS

Sparkling snow on the ground—an invigorating tang to the air—the mouth-watering smell of cooking from the cozy-warm kitchen—our boy safely home from overseas with brave stories to tell and all the manhood crystallized in him—relatives and old friends gathered at the festive table—holly wreaths at the windows and a crackling fire in the open hearth—the hilarious laughter of kiddies as the new toys make them bubble over—mischievous mischief-makers above the door for the kids you mean to give bustling, unsuspicious mother—the silvery, tranquil peal of church bells across the soft-snowed open places—an amazing forgetfulness of the dour anticipations and business worries of only yesterday—a sudden re-birth that love is life—That is Christmas!

MUCH GOOD ACCOMPLISHED BY NON-PARTISAN GOVERNMENT

principal business section of the city. The contract has been let and had it not been for the strikes, Logan's White Way would have been a reality for the coming Christmas. Under conditions it will be completed just as soon as it is possible to do it.

With the change of personnel of the administration at the close of the present year Mayor Roy Bullen and Commissioner John Quayle retire. Mayor Bullen has been the one man that has been able with the administration during the entire six years, first in the capacity of City Engineer and then as Mayor. In his work he has given to the city the advantage that a general engineering has, and in many respects the permanent improvements of the city, such as our street paving, sewer, water system, etc., show these advantages. They have been built for service, and for the permanent use of the city. Commissioner John Quayle leaves after four years of faithful service, and with the Mayor turns over the affairs of office to their successors with hope for a continuation of substantial growth and improvements, and best wishes for a successful administration.

Auditor W. H. Larsen retires after four years of faithful service. During that period he has worked hard to equip and bring the offices of the city up to date, and the present condition of the city's accounting departments are a credit to his faithful and efficient service. He likewise leaves with good wishes for all and "malice towards none."

Commissioner John A. Crockett remains for another two years to continue the good work with the incoming officials and will be found on the job early and late working in the interests of Logan City.

The Republican feels that a good voice the sentiments of the entire community, as well as the strangers that almost daily come within our gates, when it says that the past six years have been an epoch in the history of Logan. The old conditions have been swept away, and the new with all its promise and accomplishment has become a living reality. Logan has been placed in the enviable position she so richly deserves, not by one man, not by any set of men, but through the foresight of men and women that had the nerve to lead out and the common sense and good judgment of a magnificent array of common citizens that followed on.

THE BOOSTERS' INN

It is said that traveling men have a discriminating tooth. Judged by that standard The Boosters Inn is by all odds the most popular eating place in Logan. The place is loaded nearly all the time, and the only excuse made by Manager Hansen is that there are no more hours in an average day. Morning, noon or night this institution is visited by its regular patrons. As one traveling man expressed himself the other day "One can always get a square meal at a reasonable price, and served in a way that is decidedly delectable. What better recommendation could an eating establishment have? Manager Hansen is the incarnation of optimism, courtesy and affability. Every fellow who feeds his face at the Boosters' Inn once, is a loyal booster for the Inn."

DR. G. L. CHADWICK, CHIROPRACTOR

the multitudinous cares of life go about like the man of Galilee "doing good." Dr. Chadwick is a man who looks upon his life's work as an opportunity to help men in their journey through life. There are some medical doctors who look upon a Chiropactor with much of the complacency that Pat looked upon Johnson's mule which jumped in the river to keep out of the rain. While the other fellow or other fellows have been assuming that "I am holier than thou" attitude, Dr. Chadwick has gone about doing good, with the result that he has built up a large practice, and is giving genuine satisfaction.

NEEDLESS PRECAUTION.

Hubby—It's all rot and nonsense to try to make children believe there's such a character as Santa Claus. They ought to be taught better.

Wife—Our children don't need to be taught better. They know there's no Santa Claus in this house.

NIELSEN DRY GOODS COMPANY

Under the able management of Mrs. Lillie Nielsen the above named firm has come to play a conspicuous part in Logan's busy business life. For the last few months the Quality Shop came to be known for its splendid bargains, and its admirable tastes. The new management is upholding the high standards and ministering to the wants of a large and growing clientele. It is both a joy and a satisfaction to do business with the Nielsen Dry Goods Company.
